County crime drops in '91

BY TRACI BONNEY

An unusually quiet holiday has capped an unusually quiet year for the county Sheriff's Department, according to Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

"This year has not been as active crime-wise as previous years have been," he commented. "There have been fewer burglaries, with problems with criminal activity in general."

Peterson said drug-related crimes haven't increased, but they haven't decreased either. "I'd say about 80 percent of our time in the department is spent on drug crimes and burglaries. If we could get a handle on those two areas, we could pretty much stay on top of things in the county."

The year saw one murder and several suicides in the county. "It's something," Peterson remarked. "We had just one murder here this year, but in the last month we've had five or six suicides. It happens this time of year. People get depressed, think they can't cope with their problems, that there's no way out."

Other problems over the holidays have been minor, he said. However, he added, most of the incidents that have occurred have involved alcohol.

"Fortunately, there have not been a lot of accidents this season. I think people in general

Hancock traffic deaths reach six

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Lucy S. Dinero, 40, of Biloxi, became the sixth Hancock County traffic fatality for 1991 Thursday afternoon when she lost control of her car on I-10.

Sgt. Danny Tackett of the Mississippi State Highway Patrol reported, "Dinero was traveling eastbound between the Hwy. 90 and Hwy. 603 exits.

"It appeared that her car began to veer off the road on the left-hand side, and she tried to correct it by jerking the wheel to the right. When she did so, the car took off to the right and into the woods where she hit a pine tree."

Hancock County Coroner Norma Stiglet declared Dinero dead at the scene of the accident, citing multiple internal injuries as the cause.

Tackett said, passenger Clete Dinero, 13, was taken to Hancock Medical Center for treatment of injuries.

A spokesperson for HMC stated Clete Dinero was treated and discharged Thursday.

According to Stiglet, one of the six traffic deaths involved a motorcycle.

New Year's Day closings

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

In observance of New Year's Day, local closings include: the City of Waveland - December 31 and January 1; the City of Bay St. Louis - January 1; county libraries - January 1; Diamondhead Property Owners Association - January 1; and all county offices - January 1.

Postal offices will be closed New Year's Day. All local banks will be closed on New Year's Day.

There will be no garbage pick-up on Tuesday and Wednesday in Waveland, and on Wednesday in Bay St. Louis. Pick-up in the Diamondhead area will not be affected.

Needles and pines

Helpful tips to dispose of once-live Christmas trees

BY TRACI BONNEY

January is just around the corner. It's nearing time to take down the Christmas tree.

So, what do you do if your eight-foot Christmas tree is beginning to look like an upright Yule log?

Well, you can stick it out on road, in which case some poor motorist might damage his car on a dark winter's night.

County agent H. Randall Smith and Dr. Milo Burnham, horticulturist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, both recommend recycling the tree.

This project will be conducted behind the county civic center on Longfellow Saturday, Jan. 4, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Those wishing to be rid of their trees may take them to the project location, where the trees will be chipped to create an organic mulch that will be used in county beautification projects.

The city of Bay St. Louis will also pick up trees January 6-10, which will be chipped and used for city projects.

Of course, if you have your own chipper/shredder, you can dispose of the tree without hauling it any further than your own backyard. Then you will have mulch for your private landscaping and gardening.

Smith said mulch made from dead Christmas trees brightens landscapes, reduces weeds and water evaporation, and keeps the soil warm in winter and cool in summer.

Other uses for dead trees include creating fish structures in lakes and waterways; marsh stabilization; and stream bank erosion control. Smith said anyone who decides to use trees for one of these purposes must adhere to all county, state and federal laws and permits.

For smaller, potted live trees, handling depends on the type of tree you have.

Burnham said spruce trees, frequently used as table decorations, are not designed for living indoors where light is generally too low, temperature too warm and air too dry for the tree. However, transplanting the tree in freezing temperatures may kill the tree, especially if it has started to grow after being indoors a couple of weeks.

The horticulturist recommended these trees be given as much sunlight as possible and be kept at cool, but not freezing,

Paving the way

Roads and jobs top supervisors' 1992 lists

BY TRACI BONNEY

The new Hancock County board of supervisors faces one problem that has irked residents and officials alike in recent years: how to deal with county roads.

When asked what he wants to see the board and the county do in 1992, District 5 Supervisor Mike Ladner (entering his second term in office) commented, "I want to see a lot of economic development so our people can stay in the county and work, and I want to see the county have some better roads. Paving the dirt roads in the county has to be a top priority for us."

His general outlook for the county in the upcoming year: "I feel the growth of the county is going to be outstanding over the next couple of years."

Newcomer Howard Lizana, assuming the District 2 seat, remarked, "There's a number of things I want to see us do."

"We need to blacktop the dirt roads, possibly resal others already blacktopped, and repair other roads before they get where they have to be completely redone."

"About the litter that the kids are throwing on the sides of the roads, I think we might be able to start a program where we go into the schools and tell the kids about the problems they cause when they litter and the danger they create when they tear up or remove road signs."

"On our garbage, we're moving toward a time when we've got to do something. We don't have an incinerator in the county, so we may be able to work with another county — Pearl River maybe, since they don't even have a dump — and share an incinerator. "About recreation, I'd like to see something for the kids in each district."

When it comes to economic development, Lizana is just as definite in his ideas. He said he's been talking to several small industrial plant owners about the possibility of their locating plants in Hancock County.

"I'd rather see a lot of small industries than one great big one here. When one big one goes out, that really hurts the county. With the smaller ones, you know they're not all going to go at once."

His general feeling about his upcoming first year as supervisor: "I'm really looking forward to us having a progressive year." Board veteran Alton "Dolph" Kellar, who had served several terms, lost his re-election bid in 1987 then came back to regain the District 2 seat this fall, was not specific in his comments, saying he preferred to meet with the board before mentioning any specific projects or ideas he might have.

He did say, however, that two priorities for him are dealing with the litter problems in the county and finding a way to more efficiently handle funds so as not to impose high taxes on taxpayers. District 4 Supervisor Wilmer Seymour's priorities concur with those mentioned by the other supervisors.

He commented, "Two things I want to see done are better drainage and improving the roads with gravel and resealing as much as possible."

"We also need to have economic development, more jobs and industries in the county."

Direct fuel purchases reduce costs for school

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County School Board members approved the purchase of two fuel tanks Monday in the hopes that direct fuel purchases will reduce overall costs to the district.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph told board members that he anticipates a savings of $20 to $25 per bus through wholesale purchases.

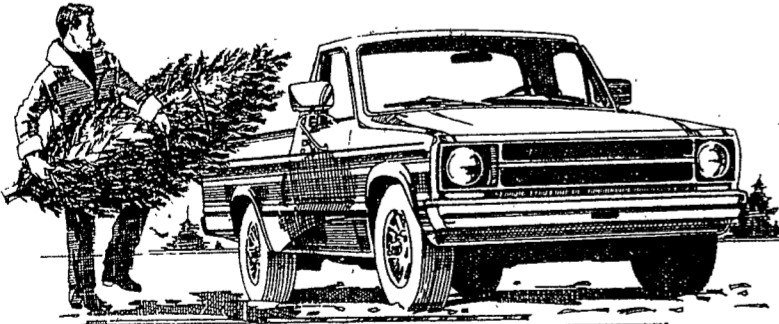

The tanks will contain diesel fuel. At present the county has nine buses which use diesel fuel.

Board member Lynette

Necaise questioned controls over who will have access to the tanks. She claimed the district had theft problems with the gasoline storage tanks used by district vehicles in the past.

The board instructed Randolph to incorporate strict record keeping procedures to ensure only authorized employees had access to the tanks.

Randolph said the tanks will be used at two servicing points within the district and only two people, one at each point, will have keys for the tanks.

the curb for the sanitation workers to pick up, but that will send the tree to a landfill, where it will take up a lot of space that could be better used — unless the tree gets blown into the

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a tree chipping project in cooperation with Mississippi Power Company and the county Cooperative Extension Service.

Card of Thanks
 We, the employees of the Waveland Animal Shelter, would like to thank everyone who helped make our Christmas Bazaar a success. The volunteers, including the Interact Club who helped work our booths, proved to be invaluable. Local businesses were more than generous in giving us donations to be used as prizes in our booths. We would also like to thank all of the pie-throwing recipients, who gave their all for a good cause.

Our special thanks to the city hall staff and the city workers who helped set up and take down our booths, as well as working very hard to help us in the booths.

We would also like to extend our appreciation to the media for the wonderful publicity given to our shelter project. We hope that everyone who attended the bazaar had a good time, and we would like to invite you back next year.

Tourism commission proposal received with mixed feelings

Bayou Caddy Casino stockholder Al Bishop's suggestion that a new commission be formed to promote tourism was received with mixed feelings Thursday by local officials. Bishop made his proposal for the formation of a Hancock County Convention and Tourism Commission to various political and business members of the community at the Waveland Resort Inn. Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre stated, "Personally, I'm not sure if an organization of that type is needed," noting that the Port and Harbor Commission, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association and Bay Business Association already promote business and tourism growth.

Favre added that revenues to support a tourism organization should not be raised from one particular group, such as dock-side gambling customers.

Bishop proposed gaming boarding fees be increased by 50 cents per person, in addition to the establishment of a two percent sales tax for hotel/motel rooms and across-the-bar alcoholic beverages as a way to fund the new commission.

He anticipates these revenues to amount to $750,000 to $850,000 a year.

Mardi Gras Casino Corporation spokesman Don Tyner stated the $2.50 boarding fee which the state legislature has authorized Bay St. Louis to collect, adequate for tourism promotion.

"Mardi Gras' position is that there should be a standardized boarding tax, statewide, because the gaming industry would fight anything that put one county at a disadvantage, compared to another county."

"We're not in favor of adding anything more to an industry that's not even in operation yet."

The board of supervisors is requesting similar legislation to cover gaming operations in the county.

Bishop claimed to have met twice with Favre, Waveland Mayor Stella Frilot, District 3 Supervisor Lisa Coward, Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association President Bill Lady, state Representative J.P. Compretta and state Senator Vic Frankiewicz to discuss his proposal.

Bishop said he visualizes a separate, independent organization with appointed members.

"We're going to have to have a consensus locally about what should be done before we even approach the Legislature," Frankiewicz commented Thursday.

Two blood drives set by Red Cross

The holiday season is one of the most critical times of the year to keep our area's blood supply at a safe level for family, friends and neighbors.

The American Red Cross has been experiencing drops in blood collections.

Strong donor turnout is needed throughout the year, especially during December and January, to insure an adequate supply of blood is available at all times.

Blood donations may be given every 56 days, and those who traditionally give once or twice a year are encouraged to increase their donations.

Donating blood is a simple and safe procedure that takes approximately 45 minutes.

Donors must be at least 17 years of age, weigh 110 pounds and be in good health. There is no age limit for senior citizens who are in good health.

For more information on giving blood or for a list of drives in your area, call your local Red Cross Chapter or the American Red Cross Blood Services, Gulf Coast Region headquarters in Mobile at (205) 438-2571.

Upcoming blood drives in Hancock County are:

Jan. 6, Annunciation Catholic Church, Kiln, 3-8 p.m.

Jan. 11, Main Street United Methodist Church, 162 Main Street, Bay St. Louis, 1-3:30 p.m.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Things have really slowed down a bit between Christmas and New Years, as not too many things are happening now.

The month of December was one of the busiest I can ever remember, especially in the first three weeks.

There are a lot of bowl games going on within the next few days and I am sure some folks will get a little tired of football all day Wednesday.

Wouldn't it be good if those bowl games could be spread over a few weeks instead of a few days.

Our county's elected officials are scheduled to be sworn in on January 6, and as many of you know, there will be very few changes in office holders.

I am hoping there will be a large turnout for this once in a four-year event.

Our elected officials will need the help and support of everyone to face the many challenges in the coming year.

Jim Williams of Diamondhead's Rotary Club called on Friday to tell me he received a Christmas card from Richard L. Baltimore III, Counselor of the Embassy of the United States of America, Budapest.

In May of 1989, Williams was in charge of the Bay Rotary Club's programs, and had Baltimore as a guest speaker.

At that time, Baltimore was stationed in Washington, D.C. and had just been assigned to Budapest. He had given a very interesting talk about his job in America's Embassy service and was really enjoyed by Rotary members.

Who knows, he may visit the area again some day. I am sure Counselor Baltimore has many more great stories to tell.

Defense funding bill includes $6 billion for Mississippi

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran announced recently that a House and Senate Conference Committee has appropriated $270 billion for Department of Defense programs and activities for the 1992 fiscal year.

Cochran, a member of the Senate Defense Appropriations subcommittee, said the bill includes $6 billion for Mississippi-related projects.

"These funds will create new jobs, pay salaries of military personnel and benefits earned by retirees," Cochran said.

Among the major items in the bill are the following:

DDG-51 Guided Missile Destroyers—$4.1 billion for five Navy ships, which are manufactured in part at the Lockheed plant in Meridian; and

Mark 48 ADCAP Torpedo—$295.5 million for 108 torpedoes. Hughes Aircraft

Mississippi, at Forest, is one of two producers of these modern torpedoes.

Funding for Air Force and Navy pilot training programs, research activities, and the Mississippi National Guard was also approved, Cochran said.

The bill contains language directing the Air Force to maintain the hurricane reconnaissance fleet at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, and funds the Gulf States Counterdrug Initiative, which will include a training facility in Mississippi.

The Conference Report went to the House and the Senate after being approved.

Andy Cutler used political influence

When he was an administrative assistant to Gov. William Winter in the early 80s, Ray Mabus became fast friends with another guy in the administration, Andy Cutler, who was brought up from the Gulf Coast to head the governor's office of job training and development. Cutler had done a previous stint in state government in the 1970s when he worked in the federal-state programs during the Waller Administration.

Afterwards, he had landed on the Coast to run the federally-funded Harrison County Comprehensive Employment and Training (CETA) program.

The Mabus-Cutler friendship continued to flourish after Mabus in 1983 made his move into the political arena, winning the office of state Auditor, while Cutler moved back to the Coast.

Parlaying his contacts in the job training field into an economic opportunity, Cutler in 1985 formed Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation as the administrative arm of the Gulf Coast Private Industry Council. He became the outlet for handling U.S. Department of Labor funds from the Job Training Partnership Act in three (later five) Coast counties.

Meanwhile, Cutler blossomed into something of a political powerbroker and drumbeater for his friend Mabus, when the young State Auditor plunged in the 1987 gubernatorial campaign. Not only did Cutler help raise campaign funds for Mabus, but according to one former employee of Cutler's GBSC, ran a Mabus campaign telephone bank out of the office.

Because Cutler's program was funded by U.S. Department of Labor grants, it was subject to the federal prohibitions against political activity, according to informed sources in the state government agency which administers allocation of the JTPA job training funds. After Mabus' election as governor, Cutler became even more of a political powerbroker as his closeness to the governor (both Mabus and his wife, Julie, were in frequent touch with Cutler and stayed overnight in his Gulfport home) became legendary.

Some referred to Cutler as the "governor of South Mississippi." Candidates for office as lofty as the U.S. Congress, made a pilgrimage to seek his favor.

Mabus appointed Cutler chairman of the Mississippi Personnel Board in 1989, adding to Cutler's credibility as a gubernatorial favorite. The Personnel Board sets policies for employment and promotion of 27,000 state employees. (It must be remembered that Cutler's Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation gets around $1 million a year in federal funds allocated by a division of the state Department of Economic and Community Development.) When Mississippi legalized the riverboat gambling business in the spring of 1990 with the passage of enabling legislation for floating casinos at ports along the Mississippi River, Cutler, tied in with one of his Las Vegas gambling contacts, moved quickly to nail down a gambling boat slot at Vicksburg.

Freely tossing around his closeness to the governor, Cutler conned the Vicksburg City Council by a 2-1 vote into approving the proposal of his group, Mississippi River Boats Inc., to dock a gambling boat in the city. Mayor Robert Walker, who voted against it, says he did so because "I don't support anything on the basis of who someone has contacts with."

Warren County later rejected by referendum permitting gambling boats to be docked in the county, putting the gambling venture on hold. Now within the past month or so, Cutler, along with his two partners in the deal, have been sued by First National Bank of Vicksburg for defaulting on two loans totalling $345,564.

But the biggest bombshell on "the governor of South Mississippi" came a week or so ago when a federal indictment named Cutler as one of four persons charged with conspiracy, bribery and embezzlement in getting a $1 million loan from the pension fund of a Gulfport-based longshoremen's union.

The indictment was the outgrowth of an investigation by the New Orleans-based Organized Crime Task Force of the U.S. Justice Department into racketeering in the longshoremen's union. In 1988, Wilson Evans II, president of the union local, was convicted of embezzling union funds and served more than two years in prison. Cutler is accused of paying $10,050 in bribes to Evans in 1987 to secure the $1 million pension fund loan. The government charges the loan was falsely secured to purchase marble cutting and finishing equipment.

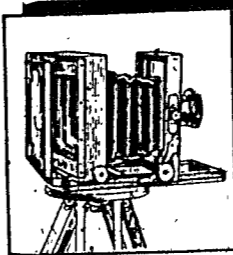

Now says the government, the money has disappeared.

32 Cents a Day for One Person. Hattiesburg Housewife Explains How To Lower the High Coast of Living. By community buying one person can live on 32 cents a day, according to this week's Hattiesburg quotations. These principal deductions, have been made by a Hattiesburg housewife today. Some of the advice given was as follows: Avoid food fads. Return to old-fashioned ideals of plain and wholesome dishes. There is too much diversity in food fashions as well as in other branches of the American life. Practice economy in food serving and avoid table waste. Recognize the value of soups, broths and stews. Eat less meat. At best, it is an expensive source of nutrition compared with non-meat foods. Americans would do well to establish meatless days. Limit the number of dishes served. Remember smaller helpings will go much to reduce the high cost of living. The potential waste of unnecessarily large portions represents a goodly slice of the national income. Utilize leftovers. Learn anew the definite food values in beans, rice, and cornmeal. Eat more fish.

—Investigation of some of our battleships reveal them to be in no condition to face the enemy. For no cause whatever they become disabled, giving trouble and expense to the government, and, at the same time, proclaim to the world that our Navy is no very formidable opponent, lessening our strength in its estimation and rendering ourselves liable to rather serious consequences in the event of an immediate naval engagement. The gun boats in question have cost the government a vast sum of money—sufficient, indeed, to merit material of no doubtful character. But instead of getting what it contracted for worthless material was supplied and a practically useless array of vessels is the undesirable result.

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Hancock High School's weight room and one adjacent class room in the gymnasium are to be air conditioned.

County school board members approved the low quote of $16,480 for the air conditioning of the two areas Monday.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph reported that air conditioning of the class room was not included in the original building plans. He said the room needed the air conditioning for use during the summer months.

The board approved a request by the high school's improv group to attend the Seventh Annual Southwest Conference of Teenage Alcohol and Drug Abuse. The conference will be held in Dallas, Texas, February 28 to March 1, 1992. Funds for expenses are to come from a federal drug grant. Thirteen students and two adults will attend from Hancock High School.

Four student members of the improv group appeared before the board and spoke on the function of the peer-counseling group and on the personal benefits they have gained through their involvement.

In other business the board approved:

—application for the Functional Literacy Examination Remedial Program for the 1991-92 school year;

—the purchase of two electric pumps with meters;

—a request by the transportation department to advertise for sale three school buses which are salvaged and have been declared obsolete;

—the low quote of $1,185 from All-Phase Electric Supply Company to upgrade the electrical panel boxes at Gulfview and Charles B. Murphy cafeterias;

—acceptance of the lowest quote for a complete exhaust system for district school bus No. 5;

—payment of the $25 deductible for three district employees who had on-the-job injuries;

—the low quote of $1,249 from Douglas Necaise for clearing, grubbing and 75 yards of sand for the day care center playground.

Supervisors Continued from Page 1A

District 1 Supervisor Robert Peterson said, "I'm going to be very happy to see the sand beach go in during the next four years. I feel confident that will go forward pretty quickly now. "On our solid waste and garbage disposal, that's going to be a challenge to get something in. Hopefully we'll be able to have a regional landfill. We plan to meet with Pearl River (County) about doing that.

"Our roads and drainage definitely need to be improved, and we need to become better at economic development. Buz (Olsen) is doing a good job of that out at the Port and Harbor, so we have to keep going.

"I hope we have a good, successful four years and make a lot of progress. We're going to work at it, I promise you that."

ON PATROL

From Echo Staff Reports

PRESCRIPTION FORGERY

Hancock County Metropolitan Narcotics Task Force Director Glenn Strong reported Friday the arrest of Lloyd F. Helwig, 46, of Metairie, La., on drug-related charges.

Strong said Helwig was arrested at around 5:45 p.m. Thursday in the Diamondhead area in a business parking lot. He was charged with eight counts of prescription forgery.

He has been released from the Hancock County jail on a $10,000 bond.

Task force agent Bill Pepperman, representing the Waveland Police Department, is in charge of the investigation.

Police Record

The following incidents and misdemeanor arrests were reported by the Bay St. Louis Police Department during the week of December 23-27:

6 driving on a suspended license

- 1 DUI
- 6 vandalism
- 2 domestic violence
- 1 disorderly conduct
- 1 disturbing the peace
- 1 shoplifting
- 1 possession of a controlled substance

Investigator David Parker said the Bay St. Louis Police Department urges all Hancock County residents to report any suspicious activity, people or vehicles in their neighborhoods to the proper law enforcement officials, who will respond to any and all calls as quickly as possible.

temperatures.

Small Norfolk Island pines, tropical trees which are often used as living Christmas trees, make excellent medium- to high-light indoor plants for a few years or until they outgrow their space. Unfortunately, Burnham said, this pine tree can't be pruned to keep it within bounds.

So, whether you decide to chip it, turn it into a fish lodging or try to keep it alive, you don't have to haul your Christmas tree to the nearest landfill.

One last thing: Burnham warned against burning your Christmas tree for three reasons: 1. Many areas have ordinances against open burning; 2. Burning an old Christmas tree is dangerous because the dry tree burns very quickly; and 3. It's a waste of an otherwise still-useful tree.

For the coming year, Peterson said his department is taking a wait-and-see attitude toward the anticipated impacts on the county of dockside gambling operations.

"I feel sure that once gaming comes in we will need additional deputies and some more equipment," he stated.

Lo-cal snacks help dieters through holidays

Eating is as much a part of the holiday season as Santa Claus.

With so much of the holiday period spent at parties, and socials, individuals may tend to forget about eating sensibly—and that can result in extra, unwanted pounds.

According to Dr. Kathy Yadrick, an assistant professor in the School of Home Economics at the University of Southern Mississippi, "Traditional (holiday) foods are high in calories, but there are other options."

"The need to give up eating during the holiday season is not necessary, but watching what you eat is very important," Yadrick said, noting popcorn is a wonderful alternative to salty foods such as chips and/or nuts.

"Popcorn is low in calories compared to other salty snacks usually eaten," Yadrick said, adding that one cup of plain, unsalted popcorn contains 30 calories; or 50 calories with salt and butter.

Yadrick said using light or reduced calorie cheeses in recipes will not alter their taste.

When selecting an appetizer or snack, she suggests choosing those that are lower in fat, cholesterol, sugars and sodium—those that provide dietary fiber as well as other nutrients.

Fresh fruits with edible seeds (berries) or skins (apples, peaches), dried fruits, raw vegetables, and whole-grain breads or crackers (whole-wheat, rye) are some good sources of dietary fiber and are lower in calories than the alternatives—holiday candy.

Beverages are another part of the holiday eating binge. A Muncher's Guide report shows that 12 ounces of cola contains 160 calories; and 12 ounces of fruit drink, ade or punch have 185.

For a "non-alcoholic cocktail," ask for fruit juice mixed with seltzer or mineral water, or a glass of tomato juice with a twist of lemon or lime, Yadrick said.

If drinking alcoholic beverages, Yadrick recommended setting limits on how much to drink. According to the report, regular beer contains 150 calories per 12 ounce can.

To control calories and sugars, request liquor mixed with water or seltzer rather than sweetened mixers.

Or try a wine spritzer (wine and seltzer water) in place of straight wine. Though "light" beers vary in their calories and alcohol content, many are lower than regular brands. Regular or decaffeinated coffee and tea contain no calories, fat or sugars unless added by the consumer.

The following are some reduced-calorie appetizers and snack ideas that may be helpful:

* Snack mix made with bite-size wheat, rice, corn and bran ready-to-eat cereals

* Fresh fruits
* Whole-wheat crackers or raw vegetable sticks and chili bean dip.

* Whole-grain crackers with a peanut butter and fruit spread

* Celery stuffed with a peanut butter spread or a lowfat cheese spread

* Pita bread stuffed with chopped vegetables seasoned with lowfat salad dressing

* Boiled shrimp or scallops as a good substitute for beef or pork dishes

Another recommendation by Yadrick is to eat a sensible dinner before leaving for a party. Once there, grab a beverage and enter into a conversation away from the food table(s). Skip the fried food and go heavier on the crackers, bread and fruit. If cheese is a must, take only one or two pieces.

The following are some low-calorie recipes:

BEAN DIP

1 (30 oz.) can refried beans (or use part chili or pinto beans)
1/4 cup diced green chilies
1/4 cup tomato sauce
4 green onions, chopped
1/4-1/2 tsp. cumin
1/2 tsp. garlic powder
2 or more Tbsp. soy bacon bits (optional)

Combine onions, seasonings, chilies and tomato sauce into pot and cook until onions are tender. Add beans and simmer until warmed throughout. Serve either hot or cold; may top with grated low-fat cheese.

CEREAL PARTY SNACK

2 Tbsp. margarine
2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
A few drops of hot pepper sauce

1 cup unsalted pretzels
3/4 cup unsalted peanuts
4 cups unsweetened bite-size cereals, assorted

1 tsp. paprika
1/4 tsp. onion powder
A dash of garlic powder

Preheat oven to 250 degrees. Melt margarine in baking pan in oven. Remove pan, and stir in Worcestershire and hot pepper sauces into melted margarine.

Break pretzels into bite-size pieces, if necessary. Stir pretzels and nuts into melted margarine; add cereals and mix well.

Sprinkle with seasonings and stir. Heat uncovered in oven for 20 to 30 minutes or until light-colored cereals begin to brown. Stir every 10 minutes. Serve warm or cooled. Store cooled cereal snack in tightly closed container.

CHILI POPCORN

1 quart of popped popcorn
1 Tbsp. melted margarine
1/4 tsp. chili powder
1/4 tsp. ground cumin
A dash of garlic powder

Mix hot popcorn and margarine. Mix seasonings thoroughly; sprinkle over popcorn. Mix well, and serve immediately. (Note: prepare the popcorn in a microwave or hot air popper. The small amount of margarine added to the popcorn is just enough to make the other seasonings stick to the popped kernels.)

CHICKEN SPREAD

1 cup chicken, cooked, finely chopped

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

If you want to start the New Year the right way in the kitchen, and keep your reputation as a thrifty but oh-so-good cook, please "stay that hand" when you're tempted to toss out those bits of this-and-that delectables lurking in the refrigerator after the Christmas feasting. There may be quite a few good "meal or appetizer makings" therein.

Those few slices leftover from the holiday ham, for instance: spread leftover seasoned rice, with perhaps orange bits and bits of bell (green) pepper and pecans, over each slice. Roll up, secure with a toothpick, and lightly braise in butter or margarine for a tasty luncheon or supper dish.

If you've only bits and chunks of ham left, you might make a seasoned cream sauce) or even use a can of cream soup) and add mushrooms and tiny peas, as well as a splash of burgundy wine, along with chopped celery and onions and such. Viola—you've made "Ham a la King," a regal dish to serve over rice or in patty shells or toast cups, or atop squares of cornbread or slices of toast.

Chunks of turkey (or chicken) cooked "a la King" in the same fashion, substituting chablis or other white wine for the burgundy, are equally delicious. It all gets down to the basics, after all. You take what you have on hand and do something tasty with it; a good rule for these days, isn't it?

As for the bits and pieces of vegetables and such leftover from holiday parties and other meals, don't toss these out; just marinate them overnight or so in a well-seasoned Italian or French dressing, then drain and serve over lettuce (shredded) or just haphazardly torn lettuce, if you're in a hurry, as I often am.

I usually keep a jar or so of marinated vegetables in the fridge, as they are so handy, and also serve as tasty tidbits on the appetizer tray or table. It's difficult to give exact amounts, as it depends, of course, upon what you have on hand or want to add.

The basic rule is: 4 cups of vegetables to 2 cups of vinaigrette or other dressing. (For my vinaigrette, I use the three-to-one ration—3 cups olive or salad oil to a cup of vinegar, adding salt and pepper, dashes of hot pepper sauce as desired. Shake well in a jar, add vegetables and refrigerate.)

Incidentally, if you don't care for black-eyed peas with rice for your New Year's Day "good luck," you might serve the peas marinated in this way.

Eat, drink and be wary.

When it comes to alcohol, it's easy to be fooled by appearances. But the fact is, that an "innocent" 12 oz. mug of beer or a "harmless" 5 oz. glass of wine, is as guilty of causing intoxication as a standard 1 1/4 oz. shot of hard liquor.

And, no matter what you're drinking, one drink per hour sets the pace for responsible moderation.

Eating foods that are rich in protein beforehand, is another way to temper the effects of alcohol.

But perhaps the most sobering fact of all, is that you really don't have to drink to have a great time.

This holiday season, be merry but wise. Use good judgement. Don't drink and drive.

Diamondhead man recognized for volunteer AARP service

During a special Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) training session December 10, nine guests were honored for distinguished service.

These nine SCORE executives represented 117 years of dedicated service to Southern Mississippi businesses and communities.

The honored guests were Ralph Batchelor, 19 years; Sid Wogan, 18 years; John Montgomery, 17 years; Larry Abrams, 15 years; Ed Benson, 15 years; Stone Smith, 12 years; Joe Hank, 12 years; and Fritz Lindley, 9 years.

Ted Godard of Diamondhead is also an AARP volunteer.

SCORE is associated with the Small Business Administration in voluntary, no-charge effort to help small businesses succeed.

Well-qualified individuals, with experience and expertise in virtually all phases of business operations, are available for free consultations and advice.

The Mississippi Coast office is located at One Hancock Plaza, Suite 1001, Gulfport, MS 39501. Appointments can be arranged by calling the SCORE office at 863-4449.

Leukemia Society seeks volunteers

The Leukemia Society of America is recruiting volunteers for its annual door-to-door campaign set for March 1-9. According to Renda McGowan, Mississippi coordinator. Last year Mississippi volunteers raised $65,000, and this year's goal is $80,000.

Leukemia and its allies—Hodgkin's disease, lymphoma and multiple myeloma, claim the lives of more children than any other disease. They strike eight times as many adults as children.

Funds from the drive will support the Leukemia Society's programs of research, patient services and public and professional education.

Louis Josof, president, states that Money magazine recently reported the Leukemia Society of America to be one of the 10 best managed charities in the U.S. and this is because of the help of thousands of volunteers who give of their time and effort.

If you wish to help the Leukemia Society in the neighborhood march, contact the Alabama/Mississippi Headquarters at 205/939-1690. If you desire information about services and programs of the Society, contact the Mississippi office, Leukemia Society of America, 3000 Old Canton Road, Suite 500, Jackson, MS 39216; telephone 601/982-5334.

XI Theta Chapter Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Pass Christian

Members met Tuesday, Dec. 17 at the home of ways and means chairman Loretta Ladner for the drawing on a basket of cheese. It was won by Joe Chapman of Bay St. Louis.

Proceeds from the raffle will be given to the Doll and Toy Fund, the Rotary Club and the Volunteer Fire Department, both of Pass Christian; and to the Salvation Army in Gulfport.

Refreshments were served.

The Christmas social and luncheon was at Chappy's in Long Beach. Gifts were exchanged by the members attending.

A Christmas ornament made by Sis Weston was won by Gerry Bishop. Opening prayer was led by the president, Edna Szymanski.

The January meeting will be a program and lunch gathering. Place and time will be announced later.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Theodore S. Price Post 3253 Ladies Auxiliary

The regularly scheduled monthly meeting was held at the post home Dec. 11. The meeting was opened by the president, Audrey S. Heyd. The roll of officers was called, and chaplain Ursula Fayre read the opening prayer. The Pledge of Allegiance was said and the National Anthem was played. All members joined in the singing, and a moment of silent prayer followed.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and treasurer Evelyn Sick gave her report. Several communications were read by the secretary.

As this was the last meeting of the year, discussion centered on the annual post and auxiliary Christmas party Dec. 14. A motion was made that all business be held over until the January meeting. This was seconded and the meeting adjourned with the closing prayer.

God Bless America was played, and all members joined with the singing.

The next meeting will be Jan. 8 at 7 p.m. After the meeting refreshments were served.

Marcel's opens in Pass Christian

Marcel's Hair Salon in Pass Christian celebrated its opening on December 9 with a ribbon cutting by Mayor Theodore J. Lawyer. On hand for the opening were, from left, Margo Hoda, stylist; Laura Clark, owner; Susan DeMetz, owner; Lawyer; Charlotte DeMetz Erwin, stylist; Laura DeMetz; Betty DeMetz; and Louis Berry. # Good earth gardening

Pesticides, fertilizers should be environmentally friendly

"The earth is not a mere fragment of dead history, stratum upon stratum like the leaves of a book, to be studied by geologists and antiquaries chiefly, but living poetry like the leaves of a tree, which precede flowers and fruit, not a fossil earth, but a living earth; compared with whose great central life all animal and vegetable life is merely parasitic."

These wisely articulated words by Henry David Thoreau, portray the earth as the foundation of life and man's role as visitors responsible for preservation.

I know, we gardeners consider ourselves good stewards. We enjoy the smell of freshly tilled soil, rejoice with the first spring bloom and marvel at the miraculous beauty of an unfurling butterfly.

Despite our good intentions, I turn a flip each time I consider certain measures used to achieve beautiful lawns and flower gardens.

It's true, some gardening tasks are not environmentally conducive. However, we can garden environmentally by applying pesticides and fertilizers properly, conserving water, and recycling yard waste.

Pesticides and fertilizers are probably the most misused measures in gardening. With pesticides the first mistake people make is not identifying the problem.

Folks generally grab the first jug they come to and make a blind attempt at solving the problem. This approach is generally fruitless, resulting in wasted time, money, dead plants and needless environmental pollution.

Gardeners should recognize the three separate pesticide categories: insecticides (control only insects), fungicides (control only fungi) and herbicides (control only weeds). No, folks, insecticides will not control crabgrass and herbicides will not control a beetle. As you can see, it is imperative to identify the pest problem and affected plant species before selecting a pesticide.

Another serious mistake that homeowners make with pesticides is applying more than the recommended amount. It's true many people operate under the "If A Little Is Good, Then A Lot Is Better" concept.

This approach is not only illegal but can harm plants, encourage pest resistance, pollute the environment and promote product removal from the market.

To avoid these problems be sure to read and follow all label instructions, calibrate equipment and follow a treat-as-needed approach if possible.

Negative environmental impacts created by synthetic chemicals can be reduced by employing natural or biological control agents. In certain situations biological approaches can control specific insects and diseases but no natural means exist for controlling weeds.

One method to reduce weeds is to mulch garden beds and implement proper turfgrass maintenance. Remember, healthy plants can minimize pest problems. By the way folks, biological pesticides are poisons and should be treated in a safe manner according to the label.

Plant and site selection can also reduce pesticide needs. Many plants, both natural and cultivated, exist with few, if any pest problems.

Also, placing the correct plant in the correct environment (geographically or locally) can promote a healthier plant with fewer problems.

Improper fertilization is another major environmental concern. Many homeowners tend to over fertilize their lawns and flower beds.

The remaining nutrients, (nitrogen and phosphorus) not used by the plants often leach into our groundwater sources. In addition, excessive amounts of fertilizer promotes excessive growth that increases insect and disease incidence, reduces root growth and increases thatch.

A method to avoid over fertilization is to have a soil analysis conducted at the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Soil Testing Lab.

The analysis only costs $3 per sample and will tell exactly how much fertilizer to apply based upon the soil chemistry and plants in question.

Other methods to reduce over fertilization is to apply the appropriate number of fertilizer applications, fertilize at the proper time and calibrate your applicator.

The use of "slow release" fertilizers in your turfgrass is another means of reducing environmental contamination. Nutrients in these fertilizers are released over a period of time and do not readily leach.

This allows efficient nutrient use, reduces grass injury, reduces mowing frequency, prevents groundwater contamination and reduces the incidence

Pass Christian Garden Club

The next meeting of the Pass Christian Garden Club will be January 2, 1992, 11 a.m., in the Hancock Bank Civic Center on Scenic Drive.

There will be a panel discussion by several of the club members on preparing now for spring flowers, bird care and conservation. The public is invited to attend.

It was announced at the November meeting that Mrs. Jean Stanbro has been reappointed as Pass Christian's representative to the County Parkway Commission for the coming year.

Mrs. Estella Drevar, first vice president, was honored by the Chamber of Commerce this year as Citizen of the Year.

WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS

Wood-Damiens

Christ Episcopal Church in Slidell, La., was the setting for the November 30, 1991 wedding of Melissa Ann Damiens and Jeffery P. Wood. Rev. Fargo officiated the afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Walter and Bobbie Damiens Jr. of Waveland. The groom is the son of Shirley Wood of Slidell and the late James Wood.

Music was provided by soloists Leslie Gleber Asher and Bro. James Burns, and organist Judy Robertson. Jeannie Riley performed the readings during the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents Monica T. Wilkerson was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Devin Rose, Andrea Ambrose, Amanda Peterson, Julie Schaefer, Kristi Smith and Sky Thomas.

Whitney Thomas was flower girl. Jeremy Damiens was ring bearer.

Jeff Wood was best man. Steve Shannon was officiant. The bridesmaids were Kenny Wilkerson, Wayne Laird, Ray Finch, Dan Ables, and Mike Shannon and Johnathon Damiens.

A reception was held at Antebellum House in Slidell. A honeymoon in Gatlinburg, Tenn., the couple will spend the first of the year in Slidell.

Gardening

of insects and diseases.

You should always follow the rate of application on the bag or as given by a soil analysis.

As populations increase, so does the impact upon our valuable water reserves. This impact can be reduced by implementing several gardening strategies.

First, properly develop flower beds that are moist yet well drained. Beds also make watering easier and reduce water and nutrient runoff.

Second, follow proper watering techniques. Lawns and flower beds watered early in the morning or on overcast days reduces evaporation.

Also, apply one inch of water per rainless week to established plantings and always water deeply to encourage a deep root system.

Third, mulch flower and shrub beds with a two to three-inch layer of pine straw or shredded bark. This will keep the soil cool during the summer and reduce water loss.

Fourth, reduce the amount of turfgrass by utilizing porous pavings (brick or sand), mulch or pea-gravel as walkways or sitting areas. You can also reduce your turf area by increasing the number of beds, along the property's periphery.

Last, select trees, shrubs, flowers and grasses that require less water and tolerate drought.

Finally, gardeners can reduce environmental impact by recycling yard waste. It never ceases to amaze me that gardeners spend big bucks yearly on soil-enriching organic matter while throwing away free sources.

It's estimated that a family produces and disposes of 200 pounds of leaves and 750 pounds of grass clippings per household per year.

This accounts for 20 to 25 percent of the material deposited every year in landfills. To complicate matters, the refuse is often placed in plastic bags which do not decompose. This has prevented some states from accepting yard waste at landfills and other states may be forced to soon follow.

To combat this problem, homeowners can leave grass clippings in the lawn. These clippings provide an excellent nutrient source (4% nitrogen 1/2% phosphorous and 2% potassium) and besides mowing times are greatly reduced by not employing a grass catcher.

By the way, folks, clippings do not increase the lawn's thatch level. If you do not like the appearance of the remaining grass clippings, they can be successfully composted.

Further reduction of turf refuse can be accomplished by following proper mowing strategies, fertilizer management, lawn aeration and watering.

Each fall an abundance of leaves cover the ground. Leaves and fallen limbs can be turned into a nice mulch by running them through a clipper/shredder machine (be sure to follow the proper precautions). The remaining leaves can be used in the compost bin to develop an excellent source of organic matter. By the way, some of these concepts also apply to the vegetable garden.

If environmental salvation has not sold you on this concept, let me appeal to your financial side. It is definitely less expensive to garden in an environmental manner because you are using less water, fertilizer, pesticides and are producing your own mulch and soil amendments.

If appealing to your spiritual and financial sides doesn't work, then maybe there is no hope. I know you gardeners won't let us down.

For more information about environmental gardening, contact your local County Extension Office. Until we meet again, this is Randy Smith saying, "Don't Waste It - Use It."

LET'S PRAY THIS NEW YEAR BRINGS PEACE AND PROSPERITY

We've just begun a brand new year, for '92 at last is here.

We hope whatever will befall Brings peace of mind to one and all. The year just past sustained the blows Of war and economic woes;

While other nations that we see Are still determined to be free. Their resolutions of this kind Inspire us to keep in mind

Our own resolve to go and pray That we may see a brighter day. So let us worship God each week; An opportunity unique

To help us keep our goals in sight, And thereby start the new year right.
